

"I'M MARRIED," NOON BULLETIN FROM SCHAEFFER

Stole March on Danghters and Wed Miss Ikel Yesterday.

DETAILS KEPT SECRET.

Declares His Bride Is Awaiting Him in Sullivan County— Joins Her To-Morrow.

While his daughters have been invoking the aid of the courts to prevent his marriage, Charles Schaeffer, real estate owner and one-time politician, has secretly married pretty Miss Jessie Ikel. He says he has, and this at least varies the daily marriage bulletins issued for five days, while his daughters have kept him skipping back and forth between the Yorkville Court and his home, No. 30 Seventh street.

Every day he has said "to-night I marry, yes." This morning he was up bright and early and after doing the housework handed out cigars before again, announced that this was to be the wedding night. He just had time to clean up the lunch dishes and get over to court in response to the latest summons when he changed his bulletin. By the way, Papa Schaeffer poses as a sort of King Lear with servants' loots, imprecations running strong. He says his daughters make him do the housework and don't like to hear him talk of Miss Ikel's noodle soup and hampers.

"I'm married," said he, as soon as he entered the court and was accosted by an Evening World reporter. "I'm married, yes, and I'm happy. I'm only sixty-six years old, and why should those girls of mine try to stop me?" He smiled jovially and winked a long, lasting wink when Lawyer Spielberger, his counsel, intervened to say: "My client is not married."

"Never mind," said Mr. Schaeffer. "I won't say where we were married, but it happened last night when I took Miss Ikel out. Then we went to Terrace Garden and I had a bottle of wine—real sparkling champagne—and my bride had two glasses of beer—cool and foaming. It was a grand celebration and to-day I sent her up into Sullivan County. I join her to-morrow, yes, for all my troubles will be over. It will be a honeymoon."

And so it looks as if Papa Schaeffer may have taken a tip from Widows' Row. This interesting flat-house is just across the street from the Schaeffer home. The flat-owners have kept quiet on Schaeffer's affairs, and they have said many times that they wondered why they didn't marry secretly and then ask his daughters what they could do about it.

The trouble started last Thursday when Schaeffer announced he would "get married to-night." As the result of the row that followed Schaeffer had his daughters in court for assaulting him.

Then he offered "five hundred dollars" to be quiet. He said he would not support them because she is of age, and he wanted her for the opposition to his romance.

The offer was refused, but the Court told the daughters they had no right to interfere by force, and the old man left with the second announcement: "I'm married to-night." But he didn't. There was some hitch, and on Saturday the daughters had him in court on a non-support charge. Again he promised "to wed to-night," and then the girls began to talk of a sanity inquiry.

There was no wedding Saturday night, and yesterday when he took Miss Ikel to the beach for an outing he said something about "to-night."

NEWLY WEDDED PAIR RESCUED FROM DEATH.

Epsteins Were Nearly Asphyxiated by Gas When They Were Discovered by Neighbors.

Abraham and Rose Epstein have been married just a month. They were found partially asphyxiated in bed on the fourth floor of the house at No. 215 East One Hundred and Second street to-day by neighbors who had smelled escaping gas.

Ally Policeman Smith, of the East One Hundred and Fourth Street Station, broke in the door the pair were sent, unconscious, to the Harlem Hospital, where the doctors revived them. Abraham said that when they felt they left the gas over their bed burning. The flame was extinguished by a gust of wind, or the pressure decreased so that the gas went out, and when the pressure was renewed, the unlighted gas filled the room.

The bride and bridegroom will recover.

PLAN FIGHT FOR CONTROL OF LIFE INSURANCE COS.

American Branch of Policyholders' Committee in Session Here.

The American contingent of the International Policy Holders' Committee, named in an effort to wrest the control of the Mutual and New York Life Insurance companies from the present trustees, met this afternoon at the Waldorf-Astoria.

At the same time the London, Paris and Berlin sections of the International Committee met in those cities.

Before the committee met at the Waldorf there was talk of making Judge George Gray permanent chairman, but he let it be known he would be too busy to accept the post and that the work to be done was of so great importance as to require all the efforts of the chairman. Richard A. Olney was then mentioned for the chairmanship, and he admitted to an Evening World reporter he was in a receptive mood or would give the matter very serious consideration.

Seldom has there been a gathering of more notable men than those at the Waldorf. Besides Mr. Olney and Judge Gray the members of the committee at the meeting were: Ex-Judge Alton B. Parker, Gov. N. B. Broward of Florida; Dr. Russell H. Conwell, representing the Baptist Church in America; Gov. Frank J. Hanly, of Indiana; John C. Hemphill, one of South Carolina's most prominent citizens; Harlow N. Higginbotham, Chicago merchant; Gov. J. A. Johnson, of Minnesota; Fred B. Neugarten, late candidate for Governor of Missouri; Samuel Newsum, one of the world's wealthiest mining men, registering from Utah; Fremont Older, of California; Bishop C. C. McCabe, representing the Methodist Church in America; Gov. S. W. Pennypacker, of Pennsylvania; Gov. Henry Roberts, of Connecticut; Charles Ripory Smith, of Pennsylvania; Gen. Benjamin F. Tracy, Thomas B. Wana-maker, and Samuel T. Timmerman, representing Thomas W. Lawson.

Gov. Blanchard, of Louisiana, was unable to attend the Legislature of that State being held in session. Cardinal Gibbons is said to be in a religious retreat and was not present. The only other member named on the committee who was not present was Congressman Nicholas Longworth, who is touring Europe with his bride.

After the committee was called to order by Mr. Timmerman, he suggested that Judge Gray be elected temporary chairman to serve until the committee was permanently organized. There was no objection and Judge Gray took the chair.

Then the doors were closed and the first debate took place on whether the meetings should be public or executive. Gov. Broward, of Florida, and Gov. Johnson, of Minnesota, with a few others contended that the people, as policyholders, were interested and that the meetings should be open to the public and that the newspapers should be invited to have representatives present.

This brought a vigorous protest from Mr. Timmerman. He said no, positively no, that no reporters were to be present and that the public was to be told only so much about the meeting as the members decided was necessary or prudent. Mr. Timmerman won his point.

Mr. Olney was elected Chairman of the organization. Gov. Hanly, Vice-Chairman. Seymour Eaton, Secretary, and Samuel Timmerman, Counsel. Alton B. Parker was named as Chairman of the Executive Committee. The other members are Messrs. Johnson, Smith, Higginbotham, Roberts and Pennypacker. Messrs. Wana-maker, Neugarten and Lawson were named as a Finance Committee.

BODY OF BOY FOUND.

What was finally decided by the police to be the body of a drowned boy was found by some boys to-day in a raft of cedar logs at the foot of Twelfth street, Long Island City.

The body was badly mutilated by the contact with the rough logs and was that of a lad of twelve or thirteen years. It was taken to the Morgue.

The raft belonged to the Phoenix Construction Company and was towed from the foot of Sixty-fifth street, Brooklyn, three weeks ago.

WOMAN BURGLAR DODGES BULLETS IN HER FLIGHT

With Two Men She Breaks Safe in Long Island Railroad Station.

(Special to the Evening World.)
FARMINGDALE, L. I., July 9.—Dodging bullets, a woman and two men escaped in a wagon here early to-day after breaking into the Long Island Railroad station, blowing the safe and getting 400 in cash and tickets.

The noise of the explosion as the robbers worked awakened a resident near the station, and as there have been several burglaries along the line recently, everybody was alert with a gun.

The safe breakers were seen to jump into a light wagon and dash down the road toward the outskirts of the town. As they sped along the people on their route fired from windows and the fugitive was quite general until the wagon disappeared. Evidently nobody in the vehicle was hit.

Somebody telephoned Sheriff Gildersleeve at Mineola, and he with two deputies hastened to Farmingdale, where, with a posse, he made search in various directions, but failed to get any trace of the robbers.

The women and the two men were seen at the station last night. They were apparently waiting for a train, and the curiosity they exhibited in looking over the place was not considered strange. It was noticed, however, that they did not wait for the train, but instead strolled off down a side road.

The robbery occurred before dawn, the train approaching having driven straight through the village to the station.

The woman in the party is described as a handsome blonde, well dressed. She is thought to be the same person whom the authorities believe figured in robberies of the railroad stations at Roslyn, Locust Valley, Great Neck and Mineola within the last three months.

Sheriff Gildersleeve continued his search to-day, telegraphing the descriptions of the burglar, particularly that of the woman, to all parts of Long Island.

Through her new attorney, Hugo Winter, of No. 5 Beekman street, Louise M. Stenton, the mother of Alice Kinnam, who was murdered at the old Stenton home, in Fordham, on June 8, has begun an action to recover property and conveyed to Burton W. Gibson and William K. Aston on July 3, 1902.

The papers in the suit allege that the conveyance was obtained by "fraud and deceit and should therefore be declared null and void."

The property consists of the old Stenton mansion and the grounds surrounding it, which consist of thirty-five city lots, situated on the east side of Washington avenue, between One Hundred and Eighty-eight and One Hundred and Eighty-ninth streets. Archibald J. McFarland, the present reputed owner of the property, is also made a defendant.

Disclosed by Police.

The property is valued at between $15,000 and $20,000 and McFarland is directed not to dispose of or encumber the same until the action is disposed of.

It was while the police were making an effort to find the murderer of Mrs. Kinnam that the business relations of Lawyer Burton Gibson and Mrs. Stenton were uncovered. The police hoped to find the person who would be benefited by the death of the daughter from a monetary standpoint.

The wives of Gibson and Aston are also named as defendants in the action, and Martin Dyer and the Farmers Loan and Trust Company.

Mrs. Stenton swears in her complaint that in July, 1902, when she was upward of seventy-five years old, feeble in body and mind and a person of weak power of resistance, she was induced by Gibson to make the conveyance.

The property was obtained by the plaintiff at a Sheriff's sale in 1867, she swears, and that during the year 1902 the executor of the will of John Munn instituted proceedings proceeding against the plaintiff, and that while such proceedings were pending, Burton Gibson called on her and volunteered to act as her attorney. Influenced by her persuasion and solicitation, she says she accepted his services.

Two-fifths for His Fee.

Gibson is alleged to have convinced Mrs. Stenton that a proper contingent fee would be an amount equal to two-fifths of the property.

It is alleged that Gibson prepared all the necessary papers and she signed them.

Later Gibson produced William K. Aston, whom he wanted as a co-seller and who, it was agreed, should receive one-half of Gibson's fee.

The little "hooker" in the deed of conveyance was the clause about the payment of taxes and assessments, namely, that these were to be assumed by Mrs. Stenton and that the lawyers were to get two-fifths of what remained after such encumbrances were paid.

OLD MRS. STENTON SUES HER LAWYER

Mother of Murdered Mrs. Kinnam Charges Gibson with Fraud.

Through her new attorney, Hugo Winter, of No. 5 Beekman street, Louise M. Stenton, the mother of Alice Kinnam, who was murdered at the old Stenton home, in Fordham, on June 8, has begun an action to recover property and conveyed to Burton W. Gibson and William K. Aston on July 3, 1902.

The little "hooker" in the deed of conveyance was the clause about the payment of taxes and assessments, namely, that these were to be assumed by Mrs. Stenton and that the lawyers were to get two-fifths of what remained after such encumbrances were paid.

The complaint then sets forth that it was never the intention of Mrs. Stenton to assume upon her three-fifths the taxes and assessments against the property and that her signature was obtained to this paper by a misrepresentation of the true facts.

Calls McFarland Dummy.

Judgment of partition was entered on April 24, 1905. Randolph Herry was appointed referee to sell the property, and at the sale it was bought by McFarland and McFarland for $65,000.

The complaint alleges that McFarland did not buy the property for himself, but was and is a mere dummy for Gibson and Aston, and that McFarland, at present the record owner, is wholly subject to the direction and control of Gibson and Aston.

An ANGELUS Is the Life

Of the Summer Home

MUSIC changes the dull home into a lively one. Time never drags where there is a piano and an Angelus, or an Angelus piano. Anybody can play it, and everybody enjoys it.

Everybody loves to visit the home of an Angelus—neighbors loiter as they pass the gate, when it is being played.

No skill is required by the performer, to play music for the dance, or to lead the singing of popular airs. Delightful as it is all year round, the Angelus is never so satisfying as it is in the Summer, when other entertainment is unavailable.

The Angelus can be fitted in a few minutes to any make of piano, and any style—upright or grand.

Price, $250—Cash,

or Easy Monthly Payments

The Emerson-Angelus—piano and Angelus combined in one case—for those who do not own a piano. $650, cash, or easy payments.
